2025 Local Public Health Monthly Webinar Series

Thank you for your participation in the 2024 Local Public Health Monthly Webinar series. In 2024, we hosted 19 webinars with an average of 298 attendees! We have collaborated from all across the Department of Public Health to bring you presentations on a variety of topics. Looking ahead to 2025, we hope to continue to provide you with timely and informative updates on relevant and emerging public health topics.

If you haven't already, please review the email sent on Tuesday, Dec. 17, about the 2025 monthly webinars and how to import the events into your calendar. If you didn't receive that email or have any questions, please email localregionalpublichealth@mass.gov.

NEW Environmental Health Equity and Climate Change Learning Series now available on TRAIN MA!

The Environmental Health Equity and Climate Change Learning Series introduces environmental health hazards related to climate change and how to recognize when they might be impacting an individual's or a community's health. This learning series provides an overview of how climate hazards and health equity can affect people's health, who is most at risk, what steps to take to reduce risk, and how structural racism impacts how we think about climate change interventions.

Learners will learn to recognize different approaches to upstream climate and health interventions at the local government, health department, clinician, community, and individual levels. The series is eligible for 2.5 RS/CHO contact hours. It is intended for anyone who may be interested in health equity, environmental justice, and climate change.

To access the learning series, click here: DPH Environmental Health Equity and Climate Change Learning Series

Private Well Impact Survey

With over 500,000 residents relying on private wells, the Commonwealth would like to gather information on potential impacts on the water supply of these residents. We ask that local public health officials complete a short, five question survey to help estimate the extent of this impact: <https://forms.office.com/g/NhDHSJRmqf>

For more information on the current drought conditions, technical guidance regarding drought management actions and for drought-related tools and outreach materials, please visit www.mass.gov/ma-drought-management; for water conservation information, go to www.mass.gov/conservemawater.

Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD) State Needs and Services Assessment Survey

The aim of this survey is to gain an understanding of the current level of familiarity with FASDs throughout the state of Massachusetts. The survey should take about 20 minutes to complete. The data collected from this survey is completely anonymous. The data will be used to create a community health improvement plan and an updated statewide resource list for the FASD community.

We hope that you choose to complete the survey to help better provide services for individuals and families impacted by FASDs! Please reach out to Reuben Kittrell (reubenkittrell@healthrecovery.org) or Jennifer Margolis (jennifermargolis@healthrecovery.org) with any questions regarding the survey.
